The United States health care system is undergoing continuous change and evolution. In recent years we have seen increased consumerism through efforts at patient engagement and high-deductible health plans. In the past several years, in response to consumer and employer demands for information to support consumerism, new price and quality transparency and consumer engagement efforts have been undertaken. In February 2015, the Health Care Cost Institute launched one of the largest national, state, and local efforts at transparency and Dr. David Newman, executive director of HCCI, will talk about the HCCI initiative, consumer engagement, and the likely impact of these changes on the health care system.

Prior to joining HCCI, Dr. Newman was a Specialist in Health Care Financing at the Congressional Research Service and previously served as a consultant to the Department of Health and Human Services, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, the Food and Drug Administration, the U.S. Army and Navy, the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, the Health Resources and Services Administration, and the US Agency for International Development. Dr. Newman possesses a PhD in political science from the University of Rochester and a JD from the University of New Hampshire Law School and has held academic appointments at Georgetown University, the National University of Singapore and Lingnan University in Hong Kong.
